

18th International Conference

SOCIAL JUSTICE & BIOETHICS:

The Rich, The Poor, and the Rest of Us

October 6-8, 2016, Utah Valley University

Salt Lake City, Utah

Keynote Presentation:

October 6, 9 a.m.

“The Significance of Injustice for Bioethics”

Leslie Francis, JD, PhD

Distinguished Professor of Philosophy and Law, Univ. of Utah

Plenary Sessions:

October 7, 9 a.m.

“Ethical Obligations and Designer Genes”

Mario Capecchi, Nobel Prize in Physiology and Medicine

Distinguished Professor of Human Genetics & Biology,

University of Utah

October 8, 9 a.m.

“Ethics At the Edge of Science”

Insoo Hyun

Professor of Bioethics and Philosophy, Case Western University

October 8, 12 p.m.

“Clinical Trials: The Possibility of Assent”

James A. Anderson

Professor of Communication, University of Utah

Although the conference theme highlights issues of social justice and bioethics, including healthcare access, emerging medical technologies, genomic research, cancer treatment, and palliative care, we encourage presentations on any areas concerning the teaching of ethics across the curriculum, including, but not limited to course design, pedagogical strategies, and assessment.

Submit 250-word abstract by August 22, 2016. For submission, registration, and additional information: <https://rit.edu/cla/ethics/seac/conferences.html>